Mr. Rackley said farmers refuse to be ignored. "We will stand up and fight for what is ours," he said.

He noted that one additional drawback to the recent report was that he believes already land prices in the area have probably dropped. Linda Parker, WIFE president, said the group would work to bring a fair solution for the farmers. The workshops will be at 1:30 p.m. at Lake Shore Middle School in the gymnasium and at 8:15 p.m. at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center.

The Alpha Phi Alpha organization will host the annual Martin Luther King Banquet on Saturday, Jan. 15, at 7 p.m. at Glades Centrals in the Annex Cafeteria. Keynote speaker for the banquet will be Palm Beach County educator Steve A. White, president of Harambe Educational Foundation of West Palm Beach. Mr. White, who administers programs and provides consultant services throughout the county, specializes in messages directed at improving the self esteem of the African-American male.

The annual Martin Luther King parade will begin at 10 a.m. on Jan. 17. Parade coordinator Mary Evans, who is also the Hurston Museum's chairman, says nearly 30 community organizations are expected to participate in the parade.

ty organizations are expected to participate in the parade.

"Everyone knows that the parade happens this time of the year, but there seems to be a particular excitement about it this year," Mrs. Evans said. "The whole town seems to be looking forward to a great day."

After the parade, members of the community are invited to participate in the events at the Muckstepper's Reunion which will again this year be held between 10th and 12th Streets on Martin Luther King Blvd.

Beginning at 11 a.m., a King Celebration with local church hoirs and speakers will be featured on the Main State at the site. And, following this praise service, there will be storytellers from Haiti, East and West Africa, the Georgia and South Carolina Sea Islands as well as musicians representing the gamut of well as musicians representing the gamut of Black musical forms. Prisoners don't have it easy
I would like to respond to the person who seems to think that prisoners have it made. I don't think from what they say that they have ever been in prison, so therefore, they have no idea what goes on in there.

What concerns me about this person is that they have so much hate in them for someone Whoever wrote that article about "prisioners having it too easy" sure hit the nail on the head. They are certainly right about everything they

I have seen it with my own eyes. We are much too easy on the prisioners in any jail or prision.

And here is an article that I came across in the U.S.A. Today newspaper (Tuesday, Jan. 4, 1994). Beware of poisonous mushrooms

Mr. Kimbrough, one of Florida's leading mycologists, had unearthed something found in many Florida backyards -- a bright yellow amanita mushroom, which can kill if eaten in large enough amounts.

In the case of the amanita, you won't know they are poisonous when you're eating them," Mr. Kimbrough said, holding the six-inch-tall fungus, which to a child could resemble a lollipop. "People who have mistakenly eaten them say they're delicious. Then they realize the next day that something's wrong. Of course, it's too late to do anything."

The usual wet spring and early summer weather create the hot and moist conditions in which mushrooms proliferate. August weather is generally too hot for mushrooms to proper, but September's cooling season increases the mushroom populations.

"There's a great deal of interest in mushrooms," Mr. Kimbrough said.
Most Americans are only familiar with the common salad, mushrooms found in most produce stores, but bhere are hundreds of edible wild mushrooms considered more delectable. In the Orient and Eastern Europe, wild mushrooms are common at the dinner table. In Russia, there are family names derived from the fungus, most notably Griboyedev, which means'

Mr. Kimbrough said.

This has happened to people who are very familiar with mushrooms but have moved to another area of the country or world, he said. Only a few mushroom varieties are deadly poisonous; the liver and kidneys absorb the toxins and the compound attacks liver and kidney cells, leading to extreme pain, profuse vomiting, distorted vision and, in four to six days, death. Some poisonous mushrooms are not fatal but that the Everglades was formed by storage and movement of water. Large welland areas and habitat were created by these phenomena. All things - birds, fish and vegetation were nourished in cycles of rain and dry periods. Thus, the report concludes, restoration can only be accomplished by recreating water flow and storage.

recreating water flow and storage.

The group studied three alternatives to achieving restoration. Each would utilize public lands and the Everglades agricultural area. One approach includes removal of part of the dike around Lake Okeechobee, letting water flow freely. No concern was evident that such a plan would destroy south Florida agriculture, commercial development, homes and even three communities. The disruption of human life was ignored.

The disruption or numan life was ignored.

In fact, these recommendations never once mention people or economic impact. How can we say we have a representative government when its recommendations don't consider the cost to its citizens in terms of lost homes, businesses and personal sacriface they must make? How can a government even think of destroying homes, towns, ranches, farms and businesses, without even mentioning financial costs? How can gov-ernment leaders talk about restraining government spend-ing, then think of spending bil-lions of tax dollars to take on ing, then think of spending bil-lions of tax dollars to take con-trol of private property? While the report mentions agriculture, it is only in terms of agriculture as a destroyer of water, a polluter of water and depleter of organic soil. Never once does it mention the value of agriculture in terms of food production and economic con-tributions.

Most of us would agree that the Everglades must be saved.

Where, will government stop?
Think of Washington, D.C. It was built on a swamp. Should it be destroyed to restore it to its natural condition? What place in this nation hasn't been changed from its natural state to meet the needs of manking?

better for all of God's creation, thanks to the effort of humans. In the past year, we have seen thousands of acres in Florida converted to preservation purposes. There is a proposal to control 12,000,000 acres for wildlife habitat.

There's another proposal to control one million acres for panther habitat. These are in addition to all currently publicly controlled lands and waters.

Where are we headed? Are we really a nation and state which believes in private prop-erty rights or are we destined form property controlled by government?

News from the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center and Palm Beach Community College

By Maria Wise Miller

A happy New Year to every one! At the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center, we have an exciting way to greet the new year. Join us as we present the Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats on Jan. 18, at 8 p.m. Imagine if you will, a golden dragon come to life on stage, skilled performers and athletes diving through fire rings sandwiched between rings studded with knives - blindfolded, and a pagoda or "house" built of chairs and people like a living pyramid. Celebrated artists direct from Taipei, China, the Golden Dragons have become the world's leading Chinese Acro-batic troupe and have won the "Entertainer of the Year Award" for four consecutive years (1988, 1989, 1990, 1991). More than 2,200 years ago,

More than 2,200 years ago, during the Han Dynasty, Chinese acrobats, dancers and magicians entertained the imperial courts. They became the star attractions for ceremo-nial carnivals and celebrations and a tradition was born.
Farm families, who had little to do during the long winter months became acrobats and from Taipei, China, the Golden Dragons have become the world's leading Chinese Acrobatic troupe and have won the "Entertainer of the Year Award' for four consecutive years (1988, 1989, 1990, 1991). More than 2,200 years ago, during the Han Dynasty, Chinese acrobats, dancers and magicians entertained the imperial courts. They became the star attractions for ceremonial carnivals and celebrations and a tradition was born. Farm families, who had little to do during the long winter months became acrobats and jugglers using whatever was available in their homes ceramic jars, cups, saucers, tables, chairs, bottles flags. available in their homes --ceramic jars, cups, saucers, tables, chairs, bottles, flags, buckets and even their own bodies to form human pyra-
